There was some uneasiness for excitement in the city yesterday, over the news brought by the Europa, in relation to the probable action of the British Government in the affair of the arrest of Mason and Slidell. After a careful analysis, we can only regard it as the surmises of the newspapers, and therefore contradictory. We find one, the Observer, stating that the release of Slidell and Mason has been demanded. The Star denies the whole story, and says the report has so little foundation as to be virtually false. The Times thinks that if the demand is not acceded to the British delegation will withdraw.

Out of these contradictory rumors we are to draw our conclusion. There is no doubt that the arrest of Mason and Slidell has created excitement in England, or that great excitement has been manufactured out of it. We expected an especial envoy, an excitement, and an inquiry into the matter. It is customary upon all such occasions, and by no means implies war as a necessary consequence. Kentucky, with a due regard to their dignity, are apt to inquire into all such cases; and their doing so by no means is to be interpreted as making war a certainty.

It is a question of international law, demanding the interchange of protocols, dispatches, special envoys, &c. Whatever demands are made are subject to decision hereafter.

It is not to these indications we must look as creating any apprehension that war will arise between the countries, but to the selfish and intolerant spirit of the English nation. Two years ago, under the imbecile government of Fuchman, we had a dispute with about the island of San Juan, and then was the time for us to act, and to have given an unanswerable lesson. Since our present difficulties, while France has maintained, with honorable firmness, the position of neutral, England has either been taking sneaking advantage or openly violating the blockade. She has been fitting out fleets and importing arms into British America, under the pretense that her citizens might be aggrieved.

From these indications it is clear to us that England is not to be relied on. We cannot expect her to behave honorably or openly, and we may expect a war.

We do not wish it, but would not go one step out of our way to avoid it. If it is to come, it had better come while we have near a million men in the field, well drilled. It will take but little trouble to raise a hundred and fifty thousand more men for the conquest of Canada, and if they can countenance piracy, and rob and plunder our commerce, and even break our blockade, we can wrench from them forever all their long-established territory in the Canadas. The losses and gains will be equal. Moreover, her flagrant violation of her own solemn pledge against privateering will leave us free, and once more our merchant fleets, converted into swift sailing privateers, can prey upon the immense wealth of British commerce.

There is a bitter feeling against Great Britain which her frequent insults and aggressions have served to keep alive. If over half a million can be raised to bring the Southern States into the Union, this bitter and smoldering feeling would flame out into a like number, ready to move, with swift retribution, on the Canadas. The men would fight with more determined zeal, and for the subjugation of Canada. And every heart would go out with urgent passion in favor of their punishment.

It is a question of international law, to determine whether the Government, as the subject of many rumors regarding his prospective marriage, which a dignified London sheet says "is an event which, in the natural order of things, may be looked for shortly." The young princess selected is a daughter of Prince Christian of Denmark—seventeen years of age, exceedingly beautiful, and possessed of the right to succeed to the throne of Denmark. Communications were commenced between the parties some time since. The revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall have been accumulating for the Prince of Wales ever since his birth. These revenues amount to about $200,000 each year, so that subtracting the Prince's expenses there ought to be about $3,000,000 invested for his benefit somewhere.

Newspaper correspondents announce the death of Harry Chayne, a printer, formerly of this city, in Western Virginia, from wounds received in battle. Mr. Chayne lingered for some months and died as a soldier and patriot should die.—Iad. Sentinel.

Mr. Chayne was engaged in our office for some time, and leaves a large circle of friends in this city, who will deeply regret his untimely demise.

Carl Schurz, it appears, sighs to return to his adopted country. Madrid possesses little of the gaiety of social life, and there is no more "scenery" about the suburbs than in the desert of Sahara.

Let him stay there, we say, till his Red and Black Republicanism are both dead within him; when he can return a decent member of society let him come back—not before.

The President of Guatemala desires a colony of free blacks to settle on the haciendas on his territory, and commence the raising of cotton. Some two hundred tons were raised there last season, and it has proved to be a good cotton country.

The Government will most certainly declare them rebels, as they are notoriously bad, and the difficulty existing or anticipated, will pass away.

A rebel, contradistinguished from a civil servant, is one who has been actually engaged in hostilities, or in giving such aid to the rebel government as unquestionably identified him with them. A civil servant may be in the employ of a rebellious government without himself being at all responsible for it. One identifies himself with the government in rebellion, profits and is injured by its success or defeat. The other is, as the word implies, a servant, and not responsible in person, though he may be in the property he carries.

Secessionism in this State took a newer birth from the outpourings of Cochrane and Cameron. It was loudly proclaimed that the war had descended, from a patriotic effort to maintain the integrity of the Union and enforce the laws, into a reckless and murderous assault upon persons and property. No wonder that conservative men hesitated, and secessionism grew exultant. It appeared that a fatal

The Trent Affair in England.

The tremendous excitement in England, on the seizure of Mason and Slidell, has been exaggerated by the telegraph. We publish the opinion of the London Times, which has been bitter against the United States Government, as important in showing that Commodore Wilkes is fully sustained by the law officers of the crown. We quote the following extract from the Times:

"Unwelcome as the truth may be it is nevertheless a truth that we have ourselves established a system of international law which now tells against us. In high handed and almost despotic manner we have in former days claimed privileges over neutrals which have at different times banded all the maritime powers of the world against us. We have insisted even upon stopping the ships of war of neutral nations bound for British subjects out of them; and an instruction by Jefferson in his memoirs in which two nephews of Washington were impressed by our cruisers as they were returning from Europe, and placed as common seamen under the discipline of ships of war. We have always been the strenuous asserters of the rights of belligerents over neutrals, and the decisions of our Courts of Law, as they must now be cited by our Law Officers, have been in confirmation of these unreasonable claims, which have called into being confederations and armed neutrals against us, and which have always been modified in practice when we were not supreme in our domain at sea. Owing to these facts the authorities which may be cited on this question are too numerous to be mentioned. The right of search, the rights of the cruizers and the decisions of our Courts of Law, as they must now be cited by our Law Officers, have been in confirmation of these unreasonable claims, which have called into being confederations and armed neutrals against us, and which have always been modified in practice when we were not supreme in our domain at sea. Further from Port Royal.

BEAUFORT OCCUPIED BY FEDERAL FORCES—THE RAILROAD BETWEEN SAVANNAH AND CHARLESTON TO BE SEIZED—GEN. VIELE'S EXPEDITION NOT YET SAINED.

The steamer City of New York arrived at New York, on the 11th, from Port Royal, which place she left on the 6th instant. She brought the following interesting news:

General Sherman had sent Gen. Stevens word of his brigade to take permanent possession of Beaufort. The federal forces stationed in that city numbered about 1,000 men.

There was an understanding at Hilton Head that arrangements were in progress for sending a force far enough into the interior to destroy communication between Charleston and Savannah. Of course, none of the details had transpired, but the occupation of Beaufort was supposed to be part of the plan.

As the City of New York sailed, troops were embarking for Tybee Island, on board the transports Delaware and Winfield Scott. The strength of the expedition was unknown. One detachment was composed of men from various regiments, and it was believed that the men had been picked for this particular service. A short time before a particular examination had been made of the channel of the Savannah river of Tybee, to ascertain if there was a sufficient depth of water, clear of obstructions, for the passage of the Wabash, in order to open a road against Fort Polk, but it was reported to be impossible to take that vessel near the fortress. The expedition which has been referred to was, doubtless, intended to test the feasibility of some other method.

General Sherman had appointed Colonel Noble, of the Seventy ninth Regiment, and Colonel Shuyard to superintend the picking and securing the cotton at Hilton Head and the adjacent islands.

The health of the troops remained good. There had been no engagement, nor had any rebels been seen near Beaufort since the capture of the Vanderbilt.

The expedition under command of Gen. Viele had not yet sailed, but was actively preparing, and would probably leave about the 12th inst.

FALSE REPORT ABOUT GEN. McCLELLAN.

There is no truth whatever in the statement under which the President overruled a portion of Mr. Cameron's report. General McClellan never expressed any opinion on the subject of General Cameron's policy of using slaves in the war, until after the President had declined to receive or adopt Mr. Cameron's views; and even then, his opinion merely amounted to the expression of a belief that the adoption of Mr. Cameron's views would have had an unfavorable effect on the army in the field. This statement came from the President himself.—Wash. Cor. N. Y. Times.

The Gazette would have us understand that it looks to the Hon. Thaddeus Stevens, of Pa., and his "Republican cause" for the reforms in our civil and military policy that seem to be decided. The hope of reform is, in our judgment, very dim, and its realization must be far distant, if we have to look for it to such instruments.

There is no reason to expect any thing but mischief from mere partisan demonstrations at such a time.—Cincinnati Commercial.
